During the week of October 7, teachers in classrooms 234 and 235 in the Jules Plangere Center were shut.

Faculty were notified by the Facilities Management staff this past summer that classroom windows were being left open and that the climate control issues, yet many are upset with the process of how the windows are opened.

Professor Furgason, the Assistant Professor/WCMC Advisor who teaches in 234, said, “I understand it’s for a loss of heat, but allowed by the building code in effect at that time. Some windows were designed to be operational so that on certain days the occupants could take advantage of favorable weather conditions and the expense incurred by the university would not be that severe. We are finding that once the windows are opened, it’s very difficult to close them. They are trying something new and some of the non-profit organizations have united with Jimmy’s on Main to help to develop the views that society has towards women who are incarcerated. The Monmouth women’s soccer team went 2-0 over the weekend in NEC play.

On October 16, at approximately 9:00 PM, a home invasion took place at 166 Castlewall Avenue, Long Branch. The location is a rental property located in the Elberon section of Long Branch. The property was rented by several University students. Entry was made through an unlocked front door. Long Branch Police are actively investigating the case.

All students are reminded, when living off campus, to conduct a security survey of their rental properties. They should familiarize themselves with locking mechanisms on all doors and windows and should secure their premises at all times. If anyone is interested in having the University Police respond to their off campus locations to assist them with a security survey they should contact the University Police at 732-571-3472.

Lastly, all students who live in off campus properties are reminded that if they must call the police, they should first call the local police in the town in which they reside. If they need any further assistance, they can contact the University Police.

Writing Center Begins Workshop
FRANK GOGOL
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Students attended a writing workshop presented by Susan Berrios, a Writing Assistant, on the active and passive voice at the Writing Center on Thursday October 16. “I had read of similar series at other universities. I thought that Monmouth would be a great place to try grammar workshops as long as they were short and fun. The tremendous response for the first workshop apparently confirms my supposition. I then put out an e-mail late Friday, promoting the second workshop, and by Monday morning the two workshops were half full,” according to Jane DeTullio, Director of the Writing Center, on how the workshop series came about.

According to Berrios the topics for the series that were selected were ones that would “meet the majority of students’ needs, and all students have to write academic and passive voice properly.”

MU Hosts Opera Trip to the Met

LESLEY WEINBERG
CLERK/EDITOR

Forty students went to the Metropolitan Opera House on Tuesday, October 14, to see Don Giovanni. Don Giovanni is a ladies man and manipulates every one into getting his way. Throughout the opera, women want to be with him, people want to kill him, while his overworked and unappreciated servant Leporello just wants some recognition and to leave him alone.

Students put down a deposit of ten dollars and it was returned to them with their ticket when they got on the bus. The bus, backstage tour ticket and ticket to Don Giovanni are sold through the Office of the School of Humanities and Social Sciences. The History Department and the Department of Philosophy, Religion and Interdisciplinary Studies. On the bus, students were given a cheat sheet about the opera to study on the way up.

There was a great demand for tickets but due to limited numbers, only the first forty students could go. Each semester, they plan a trip to the opera and to a museum, this semester it was the Philadelphia Museum of Art and Don Giovanni. The trips are planned a year in advance and tickets are purchased as soon as they go on sale, typically in August. This was their fifth semester running these trips and each opera trip, Professor Pasquale Simonelli tries to vary the operas in plots, composers, and type.

“I was always interested in the opera. When I didn't go, because it was too expensive, I would have a weekend showing of the opera. It was the idea of Don Giovanni to really go,” said one of the trip's coordinators, Professor Simonelli. “An Opera is an incredible work of art. You have everything; lyrics, music, graphic arts (scenery), ballet, and even the spectator is part of the show. You blend the whole thing and are a piece of it. It is important that people who have never participated, take part, at least once in your lifetime to experience this.”

The backstage tour showed the nooks and crannies of the Metropolitan Opera House. The building is ten stories tall, ten blocks wide (to put it in perspective, take a 45 story building and lay it on its side) and is located in the Lincoln Center. The Met has one of the largest stages in the world, 100 feet wide and 80 feet deep and has three rotating stages on each side.

This stage sees 28 operas per season. During the day, two sessions per day, a dress rehearsal of an opera and then the show at night. Students on the trip get to see dressmakers making costumes in the costume shop, where scenery is stored, people setting up the scenery for Don Giovanni, the paint shop, scenery construction room, went into the leads dressing room, rehearsal rooms where Madame Butterfly was being practiced, and even got to see the animal entrance. While students stood on the side stages, mist came down from the ceiling to ensure perfect conditions for the actor's voices. After the backstage tour, students had free time for dinner before the opera started.

“[T]his trip was very enjoyable. The tour was a great learning experience and the opera itself was excellent.”

YURI ALBERTAO
Sophomore

Sophomore, Yuri Albertao stated, “I thought this trip was very enjoyable. The tour was a great learning experience and the opera itself was excellent. It is incredible to feel the audience being moved by the characters, whether harmed by Leporello's sides or touched by Donna Anna's grief.”

The auditorium of the Met is quite unique because there are no microphones used throughout the house. The Met created different ways for better acoustics: the ceiling has a series of bubbles, balcony along the sides has a very curvy shape to it and inside there is a special wood from Africa. The chandeliers throughout the Met were a gift from the Austrian government to the US after World War II and are endowment to the Met. Audience members don’t have to be fluent in Italian to enjoy the opera.

On the back of every seat is a screen that has translations of the opera in English, German or Spanish.

“I love the opera trip. I went on it last year. This year is my second time to the opera and I am a theater major, so it is an opportunity for us to get out there and see things for free. I will definitely go to next semester as long as my schedule allows it,” said, sophomore, Marie Kohut.

In case students missed the opera the first time around, there is another trip already planned for the spring. It will be on Tuesday, March 31, 2009 and is L’Elixir D’Amore (The Elixir of Love) by Donizetti. If students don't have the whole day to go to New York, the School of Humanities and Social Sciences, Academic Program Initiatives, and Jewish Interdisciplinary Studies Program is bringing a little taste of the opera to Pollak Theater.

Students visited Metropolitan Opera House (pictured above) on a trip offered by the School of Humanities and Social Sciences, The History Department and the Department of Philosophy, Religion, and Interdisciplinary Studies.

Raya Gonen will be performing “Singing for Survival: From Holocaust to Hope” on Wednesday, November 19 from 7:30-9:30 p.m. in Pollak Theater. Raya Gonen is part of the Israel National Opera and will be performing songs from the Holocaust.

Just as the students were about to end an uneventful, school-sponsored trip to the opera, it was discovered that a wrench was thrown into the works. When the students got on the bus to go home, it was discovered that the vehicle's battery had died and a bus needed to be driven from Middletown to NYC at midnight to pick up the students. The Big Apple Circus happened to be right outside our bus but unfortunately the show didn't start till October 23.

So I guess it really ain’t over ‘till the fat lady sings.

Sigma Pi Hosts Deal or No Deal

Christine Murray
MANAGING EDITOR

Pollok Theatre held Sigma Pi’s first Deal or No Deal on Wednesday, October 1. Sal Fiore, the president of Sigma Pi and banker for the show said, “We decided to do Deal or No Deal because we wanted to do something a little different for everyone. The show is very popular, and we thought it would be a great way to get all the Greek organizations together, give away money to them, and raise money for a good cause.”

Andrew Beuschel, the fund-raising chair for Sigma Pi added, “This is the first time doing this event but we want to make it an annual thing, we saw the success of other organizations and wanted to throw something big too.”

“The cases were borrowed from Lucky Leo’s Arcade on the boardwalk in Seaside, where Beuschel works; all of the money given away was donated by the brothers of Sigma Pi. Gift certificates, either bought or donated, were raffled off during breaks between contestants and the dance team performed around the middle of the show, moving the night along and keeping the audience entertained. He really played the part and looked like he had a great time up there,” Messana said.

Jerry Messana, the host impersonating Howie Mandel, agreed. “The best was definitely Pete from Theta Xi. He is funny and as we all know very loud... it looked like he had found his outrageous getup... I feel like it got a great reaction.”

Jerry really was like Howie Mandel. He really played the part and really made the show realistic,” Seeley said.

“Sometimes you play with the observant contestants and the gimmicks of the show,” Bostean said. “I think it worked out well.”

“The best was definitely Reza Naghibi of Sigma Pi. He is always so loud and seems to always be running around, it was the same theme as the TV show and it was hilarious. I used to watch the show with my mom and dad, and had to YouTube Howie to get familiar with his moves. I really enjoyed being introduced and shocking everyone with my outrageous getup... I thought it went well.”

It’s not every day you get to be a fool in front of a large amount of people and I’m not afraid of being on stage and looking like an idiot, so the guys always make me get up there. I was happy from the feedback I got around campus and definitely made the guys proud.”

Music and sound effects for the show were executed by Fiore, who found his materials from a soundboard online at www.soundboard.com/sb/Deal_Or_NoDeal.sounds.aspx.

Lighting was done by Pat Doyle, another brother of Sigma Pi. Fiore, as the banker, also calculated the offers. He found a Deal or No Deal Risk Calculator online that he Googled and Reza Naghibi provided the website at http://www.rezasoft.org/deal.

Twenty-five percent of the proceeds went to their national philanthropy, the Sam Spady Foundation. It honors the memory of Samantha Spady, a 19-year-old student at Colorado State University, who died of alcohol poisoning on September 5, 2004. Their foundation is used to educate all parents and students on the dangers of alcohol, specifically high risk consumption, and the sings and symptoms of alcohol poisoning.

Fiore said, “This is something I personally took emotional interest with. Going to surrounding high schools around the area really moves me. I feel that if high school seniors see kids their own age or close, it could hit them harder. So far, including this year and last year, we have done Sam Spady Projects at Manasquan, Long Branch, Manalapan, Keansburg, Howell, and Shore Regional High Schools. My calculations estimate that we reached about 2,000 high school seniors and others, and passed out Sam Spady cards to all of them.”

In the past, we had a week-long alcohol awareness event as our ACE Project (Altruistic Campus Experience) in 2006. We also co-sponsored the Underage Drinking Coalition Alcohol Awareness Event where we spoke as well. We do the Sam Spady Projects at surrounding high schools and a few events on campus in the past and future,” Fiore said.

Messana said, “I would think we would do this event again. It has been a few years since Sigma Pi has done a fundraiser, I believe it went well overall. Many people involved in different Greek organizations gave me compliments as well. It would only get better if we did it next year.”

Monmouth University’s Student-Run Newspaper Since 1933
Dear Students:

As we get ready to welcome friends and alumni back for Homecoming 2008 – Celebrating 75 Years, we hope that you will make time to attend the annual Pep Rally that will be held in Boylan Gym on Friday, October 24 at 4:00 p.m. As part of this year’s Pep Rally, students will have an opportunity to win a free semester’s worth of books from the MU Bookstore along with a number of other giveaways. We are also very excited to note that the men’s basketball team will be holding its annual Blue/White Scrimmage immediately following the Pep Rally and we hope that you will stick around after the Pep Rally!

For those of you who plan to come to the parade and football game on Saturday, October 25 we want to let you know that the parade will begin near parking lot 16 at 11:45 am. The Hawks will then take on Central Connecticut State University beginning at 1:00 pm at Kessler Field.

The Monmouth University Police Department would also like to remind everyone who is driving to the game to pay particular attention to the no parking signs on the side streets in West Long Branch. The University has also been informed that the West Long Branch Police Department will issue tickets to anyone who attempts to park their vehicle on Larchwood Avenue.

Students, clubs and/or organizations who plan to set up a tailgating spot had until Monday, October 20, 2008 to submit the Tailgating Reservation Form and the $150.00 refundable deposit to SGA. Those groups are currently in the process of meeting with members of the Homecoming Committee to discuss all of this year’s rules.

Common Sense and Good Decision Making

Even though you and/or your friends may not sponsor a tailgating spot, there is a chance that you will stop by the student tailgating area to visit friends who are. If so, we ask that you take a few minutes to review the following Homecoming information and guidelines for 2008.

- Student tailgating will take place in parking lot 16 (behind Plangere Hall).
- Everyone attempting to enter lot 16 MUST have a valid state photo driver’s license or state issued ID. No exceptions will be made.
- Drinking games, competitive drinking, drinking paraphernalia is prohibited and will be stopped. Drinking paraphernalia will also be confiscated.
- Only the students that have registered for a tailgating spot may bring alcohol in lot 16.
- Students and guests are not permitted to bring bags, backpacks, purses, animals, alcohol or similar items into lot 16.
- SGA has contracted a FREE cab service on game day between 1:00 pm and 5:30 pm that will take students/guests back to their local address in the event someone is unable to safely and legally operate their car.
- Students and guests will also be able to access a variety of FREE food and non-alcoholic beverages which are being sponsored by ARAMARK, SGA, Pepsi and the Office of Substance Awareness.
- For the safety of the students/guests, vehicles will not be permitted into parking lot 16 after 11:00 am on October 25, 2008.

Should part of your Homecoming weekend involve the consumption of alcohol we ask that you do it in a safe, legal, and responsible manner. We know that it is possible to respect the law, be responsible and still enjoy all that Homecoming has to offer. Furthermore, if you live off-campus and are planning to invite friends over or host a party during Homecoming weekend, please be careful and observe the laws as they pertain to quality of life issues (excessive noise, trash, etc.) and the use and consumption of alcohol. If your off-campus gathering is drawing the attention of your neighbors, you run the risk of having the police show up at your rental.

Please be safe, be smart, have fun during Homecoming and GO HAWKS!

Sincerely,

2008 Homecoming Committee

THE FREEZE ON SPENDING

FRANK GOGOL  EDITOR IN CHIEF

Last week President Gaffney issued a statement about the University’s efforts to restrict and control its spending in these tough economic times. He explained that it is not just the United States that is suffering from economic turmoil, but the world at large.

Some of the policies the University had adopted to decrease unnecessary spending are as follows:
1. Hiring will cease for the time being unless an offer had been made or a vacancy would jeopardize safety or academic accreditation.
2. Vice Presidents have been directed to scale back spending unless it is absolutely necessary such as in the case of paying bills or to honor contracts. President Gaffney then spoke about the other side of the coin, revenue and tuition.

“Monmouth relies almost exclusively on student generated tuition and other fees as its sources of funding,” said Gaffney.

He continued by assuring readers that programs to attract new students and maintain the retention of current students would not suffer.

The statement was also a reminder that Monmouth University has controlled cloudy tuition growth making it one of the most affordable private institutions in the region.

In the statement President Gaffney noted that we will honor contracts that have been established. This is a bit vague, but at the very least an allusion to the multi-million dollar Multipurpose Activities Center being built next to the Student Center.

One of the strongest points made throughout President Gaffney’s statement was preparedness. He explained why and how the University had prepared and taken action.

I wish that he would have addressed how students can be prepared in these hard times.

Here I offer my own advice. Be thrifty. I know how nice it is to buy new clothes and video games, but you really need to ask yourself, “Do I really need this?” If you are being honest with yourself and the answer is no, do your self a favor and do not buy the desired object.

Being frugal does not mean to spend no money at all, though. The school has adopted a good model to follow. Paying bills is important, especially right now. If you do not pay your bills you cannot build your credit and these things are all interconnected.

My last piece of advice is to work harder at your job. Work harder than you ever have. The job market is suffering and employers will be looking to cut back on staff to save money. If you work harder than the rest you will be a less likely candidate to be let go. No job means no money.

If we stick to these simple guidelines and help one another we will make it through these hard times and we will come out on top.

THOUGHTS ON SATURDAY...October 25, 2008

...you really need to ask yourself,”Do I really need this” If you are being honest with yourself and the answer is no, do yourself a favor and do not buy the desired object.

Rod Dreher
ACT-WISE SERVICE

ALL my life, I’ve cast votes in presidential elections that were votes against the Democrat rather than for the Republican. Such was the case with the Bush ‘04 campaign all had the explosive excitement of road tripping to Dubuque in a Lincoln Town Car, but it wasn’t hard to vote for the guy, considering the alterically revolting. Voting in American presidential politics usually requires discerning voters to resolve not to let perfect be the enemy of the good enough.

This year, though, I’m close to being done with that compromise. At the risk of scandalizing my high school civics teacher, this might be the first presidential and congressional election I’ve sat out on principle. As a character in Richard Linklater’s film “Slacker” says, “ Withdraw in disgust is not the same as apathy.”

A vote for Barack Obama is all but impossible. I am a pro-life social conservative, full stop. Obama is radically pro-choice, even votally against legislation that would have saved the lives of babies born during botched abortions. The Rev. Jennifer Wright’s spiritual son is disqualifyingly left-wing on social issues that matter most to me. And I suspect my high school civics teacher, from Clinton-era Wall Street associates to 1960s domestic policy, is going on behind the scenes. If Palin were as sharp as her campaign ads, she would do. So here is my vote – Sarah Palin.

Listen, I’m going to be honest, I am not a fan of Sarah Palin. What is make clear is that Sarah Palin is considered one of the hottest females in politics today. Before McCain picked Palin as his running mate, pretty much no one had ever heard of her, except for some small town Alaskans.

Her tight twisted hairdo and accent has really made a name for herself, as a monumental runaway for the country. We want people who are smart and thoughtful, well-read and creative enough to lead our country. She always seemed to be making my mind up, not just memorized talking points or attack scripts.

Palin has a way about her that she will say something totally absurd and our heads will do a 360 degree spin, but then she will make it all better with that small smile and wink she does so well. It is almost like we are being brainwashed. Her charming de-round of competition, one team is selected to affirm this resolution, designating that team as the Affirmative. Of course, the teams come prepared with tons of evidence either supporting or refuting reasons to affirm the resolution. While it is relatively simple to generate a plan that affirms the resolution, it is also the duty of the debate teams, should they be chosen not to argue for the debate resolution, to find evidence that refutes any plan that could be presented by an opposing affirmative team. This evidence can be in the form of articles and quotations that directly counter arguments made by the other team, as well as counter-arguments and/or dis-advantages to the proposed affirmative plan.

Debate Team Competes at West Point

Monmouth students were able to win against teams from Johns Hopkins University, George Mason University, Bard College, The University of Richmond, Towson, The University of Massachusetts (Amherst), and the United States Naval Academy.

This all sounds very complicated, and sometimes it can be, but it all boils down to which team can most effectively argue that they have the superior evidence and logic behind their argument. Each debate round consists of four nine-minute constructive speeches, four three-minute cross-examinations, and four six-minute rebuttal speeches. Each team member completes one of each of these elements within the round, and the round itself takes between 70 and 100 minutes, depending on how much of the allotted 85-minute preparation time is used by each team. There were two rounds held on Friday night, followed by four more on Saturday. This extremely rigorous tournament style forces every team to incorporate a high level of stamina into their repertoire of debate skills. Each round is judged by a debate panel of three judges weighing the round. At the West Point tournament, each of the five Monmouth teams won at least one round each. By Saturday afternoon, three Monmouth teams stood at three wins and three losses each. The competition organizers then tabulated the speaker points from each of the tournament’s 3-3 teams and advanced the highest-ranked teams to the double-octa finals. The Mikulka-Tiscia team was the only Monmouth team to advance to the first elimination round of the tournament. They were pitted against another 3-3 team from George Mason University. Since this was an elimination round, there were three judges weighing the round. Mikulka and Tiscia fought hard, vigorously defending their plan to affirm the resolution by eliminating all biofuels subsidies. The judges, however, voted for the negative team, officially ending Monmouth University’s participation in its first ever college policy debate tournament.

While it is always disappointing to lose a competition, each member of the team is proud of its performance at the tournament. Monmouth students were able to win against teams from Johns Hopkins University, George Mason University, Bard College, The University of Richmond, Towson, The University of Massachusetts (Amherst), and the United States Naval Academy.

The team left West Point with two awards late Saturday night. First, a plaque congratulating them for making it to the final elimination rounds was given to the MU debate team. Also, Mikulka was awarded a trophy for finishing the tournament with the fifth highest speaker points out of the 82 people competing in the tournament. The team is hoping to go to at least one more competition before the end of the semester. If this first tournament is any indication, there are more awards and trophies on the way for this ambitious and talented group of students.
Welcome to Fashion U: Where it is all about You and Your Clothes

A Look At Monmouth’s Fashion

As college students, we are all in the process of finding out who we are. Expressing ourselves through what we wear is a big part of the process.

We’d like to explore the fashionistas out there who truly inspire with their clothes. We search for unique, trendy, cute, and even outrageous fashions. Our goal here is to fill you in on the latest trends and to be a part of our Fashion U section...so don’t be afraid to strike a pose!

Sail into Nautical Fashion

Marie Worsham, a freshman here at Monmouth University was spotted in nautical attire this past September. With her crisp outfit, Marie executes the classic nautical look with perfection. Marie portrays this look by wearing a simple navy blue and white striped top with a high-waisted red skirt. The color palette for this fun, sailor inspired look typically consists of these three colors, sometimes accented with a hint of gold.

Like Marie, be sure to keep this look simple and clean. Don’t forget, like all styles, the accessories you choose can make or break the outfit.

Basic nautical attire includes blazers with gold buttons, anchor prints, polo’s, horizontal stripes, white/navy pants with shoes like Keds, loafers, flip flops, cork heels, espadrilles, and boat shoes.

Being able to mix and match these items is what makes the nautical style so much fun to wear. But, pulling off this look can be more difficult than it sounds. It’s very easy to go overboard!

The do’s and don’ts of nautical style include keeping everything in moderation, not mixing your horizontal lines, wearing the right color combinations, using the anchor print wisely, and never over accessorizing.

The nautical look encourages use of accessories such as pearls, rope belts, straw bags, striped bags, simple gold chains, anchor charms, pendants, bangles, and sunglasses.

When accessorizing, try to keep in mind the inspiration of a sailor. Wearing anchor jewelry, rope belts, and using the color palette are all ways to stay connected to your inspiration: the sailor. At Monmouth students living within close proximity to the beach, it is easy to be inspired.

Designers who have consistently been inspired by the nautical look include Polo Ralph Lauren, Nautica, and Tommy Hilfiger.

Each of these designers have updated and refreshed the nautical trend with each new collection. Ralph Lauren is predominantly known for producing Polo shirts with the iconic horse emblem, Tommy Hilfiger makes use of the nautical color palette in his signature symbol, and Nautica’s name, along with its signature sailboat also portrays nautical inspiration.

The nautical trend has also been spotted in high fashion through designers like Coco Chanel. Her runway looks are a little more edgy than the typical nautical look, yet she still manages to keep them fun and classy.

Like Coco Chanel demonstrates, there are always ways to update this trend in relation to your own personal style. Whatever way you choose to wear it, the nautical theme is a great fashion transition between Summer and Fall and it will forever remain a classic.

Marie’s Outfit: Shirt – Bitten - $8.99, Flats – Forever 21 - $20.00, Sunglasses – Ray Ban - $150.00, Flip Flops – Abercrombie & Fitch - $22.00, Bag – American Apparel - $38.00

Creative, innovative and outstanding, The Coal Fired Brick Oven exceeds the average pizzeria in flavor, quality and freshness. Better known by their acronym CBO, the small restaurant opened only eight years ago in Bradley Beach and has quickly gained popularity among locals.

"I'm a loyal customer" says Susan Scribner a spring lake resident who shares her love of the Coal Fired Brick Oven. "I'm obsessed and addicted" she says "but in a good way" Scribner adds laughing.

The place is usually packed every Friday, Saturday and Sunday night, and sometimes you will catch them slammed on a weeknight as well, so make reservations. Either way, hopping or dead, I find the atmosphere to be pleasant and enjoyable.

The trendy upbeat music playing and the smell of cooking pizza wafting throughout the restaurant, is part of what makes the experience so exciting. Scribner also finds the atmosphere to be one of the things that pull her back to CBO as well as their food and good service.

CBO pizza is a more gourmet style of pizza, sold by the pie and not by the slice. The pizza does not look or taste like what we would expect of a normal pizza pie. All of their pies are cooked in a coal fired brick oven and only stay in for three or four minutes at most. When the pies emerge from the oven they are garnished with ribbons of fresh basil and served hot to hungry customers. The crust is light and crispy, on the thinner side, and the homemade marina sauce is flavorful with a thick yet smooth consistency. And, stop crostini’s, CBO places their fresh tomato, onion, herb and parmesan cheese medley over hot pizza. I find the coolness of the fresh tomatoes to be a refreshing contrast to the hot pizza. It

The Coal fired Brick Oven is a favorite among locals they use only fresh mozzarella cheese. Depending on the mood of your taste buds, The Coal Fired Brick Oven offers fourteen different variations of specialty pies, including a Bianca (white pie), four cheese, herb crust, pesto pie and many more. The Patti Pie is another specialty item unique to CBO. It is bruschetta merged with pizza and it is delicious. Instead of placing the chopped tomatoes

In case your mouth is not watering already, the Coal Fired Brick Oven also serves signature salads and panini’s. Fresh romaine lettuce chopped into bite size pieces and dressed lightly with vinegar and oil. Seasoned in perfect proportion salads at CBO are a pleasant surprise to a palate who underestimates greens. My favorite salad of theirs happens to be the CBO signature salad.

Located on Brinley Avenue, off Main Street in Bradley Beach CBO is a relaxed family style restaurant that for pizza runs pricy, a large pie costing 14.50 without toppings. But, for the quality of the meal and the upscale atmosphere, it balances out that cost; remember this is not your average pizzeria.

CBO is one of my favorite places to eat and definitely at the top of my list for pizza. With its interesting and modern flare, and casual dress code, The Coal Fired Brick Oven is perfect for your next date or outing with friends. Thank You and Buon appetito!

DANITY KANE IS DOWN TO THREE

Taylor Corvino

Danity Kane fans need to get their first aid kits handy because the group is seriously damaged. For those of you that tuned into last week’s tumultuous season finale of Making the Band 4, the fiasco that went on at the end of the group was simply considered a joke by many KiwiMake members. The group was told to get serious about their careers and take it out of the ‘reality’ show. But that didn’t sit well with Aubrey, and D. Woods. Aubrey and D. Woods failed to come up with an answer that was acceptable to the group, which caused Diddy to tell her to leave the group as well.

On the season finale of Making the Band 4, the remaining girls of Danity Kane went to the TRL studios in Times Square to discuss the future of the group, which they all confessed that they had no idea what was to come.

Diddy was also there via satellite saying that he was not the bad guy in this situation and he had to let Aubrey go because she was not the same girl he signed a couple years ago. He did say that he would work with the girls to figure out what the future holds for the group. In typical Aubrey fashion she was upset with the news and expressed her disarray with the communication between Danity Kane and their label. Aubrey wanted Diddy and other Bad Boy execs to let the girls know when things such as demos were being recorded.

That last complaint sealed Aubrey’s fate as a member of Danity Kane by saying he worked too long and hard to be spoken to that way and he would not allow the girls to group anymore.

Next up the chopping block was D. Woods. When asked if she was happy about the situation of the group, D. Woods, which caused Diddy to tell her to leave the group as well. physiology of www.theonelove.org

Have you ever wished that there was a way you could read up about some of your favorite bands through a special point of view? Well, it turns out you can, all while helping raise money for charity! The One Love Organization, or TOL, is a site that takes musicians, artists, managers and superfans and brings them all together to share their love and passion for music, life, and one another.

TOL is the brain-child of Jade Driver, Cassie Petrey, and Ben Romans (The Click Five). The idea for part of the website came about two years ago, while the three were on tour in Nottingham, England. They were discussing how they could share their passion for music with others as well as bring people together to share their love of music as well. Jade remembers Romans had mentioned that his band had such a wonderful fan base that went so much of their time and energy on the band. He wished he could take a small percentage of that energy and use it to help others. She attributes this to having helped spark the notion of creating a blogging site that could not only bring music fans together, but help raise money for charity at the same time.

As a comic book enthusiast who has been to a large degree let down by the recent entries into the genre of superhero films, I was captivated by the 2008 Iron Man. The film is full of a star-studded cast such as Scarlett Johansson as Natasha Romanoff, the Black Widow. Tony Stark’s origin story is covered in the movie. When Dr. Bruce Banner (Mark Ruffalo) is exposed to gamma rays and is transformed into the Hulk, he in turn makes an enemy out of himself. He will stop manufacturing weapons because in the world.

The film is a 47-minute look back with the events that led up to the creation of the Invincible Iron Man and is a complete departure from the idea of The Living Daylights. The movie is a perfect way to bundle up, both popcorn and candy were supplied. Not to mention, there was a Christmas parade. It was a beautiful night under the stars.

Entrepreneurship

Professor Buzza, who teaches the class, discussed the idea with his students, and all agreed that it was what they wanted to do. Buzza thought working with Redeem-Her was a good choice because she felt it would be a successful experience and “giving back.” Philanthropy was a primary reason that the students wanted to do it. “I thought it was the right thing to do,” Buzza stated.

The next project for the entrepreneurship class is significant to the thrift shop’s message. Kindt stated: “We actually asked the women inside the prison to submit their suggestions for a name for the store. We wanted them to feel like they were a part of it too. Our favorite name from those submissions was “Second Chances.” We want them to feel like they were a part of it too.

There was really never even a vote. The participants were so supportive of the idea that the students considered. They also brought up the idea of giving everyone a serve as a full-time store and volunteer coordinator.

All proceeds from the thrift shop will be donated to Redeem-Her. Aside from helping incarcerated women learn the basic necessities to rejoin the world, the students are also benefitting from the program. “They are learning a lot of real life’s lessons, ethics, social awareness, starting a business and what it takes to run one. No one really realizes what goes into [starting a business] until you get involved in that and are learning first hand,” stated Buzza.

Prost! That is all the boys kept saying after their trip to Oktoberfest. They went to Munich, Germany to see if Oktoberfest was really like the movie, Beerfest. As you would expect, they fell in love! They could not believe their eyes; it was like a huge carnival with rides, food and beer! The beer could only be drunk in tents; there were about nine different tents they visited. Each one was different.

All of a sudden we started to smell this incredible aroma of sugar and sweets. We heard there was one near the church of Santa Croce, luckily that is only two blocks away. So we walked away. You are not supposed to talk during this operation. But back to the secret bakery!

There are two bakeries in Florence that only open from two in the morning till six in the morning. So one night I dragged out my boyfriend and his friends to find this “secret bakery”. We heard there was one near the church of Santa Croce, luckily that is only two blocks away. So we started walking by the church and all of a sudden we started to smell this incredible aroma of sugar and sweets.

We followed the scent to the door of this kitchen. But then we looked side to side to make sure there was no police coming and hand you the sandwich. You would then give him money and walk away. You are not supposed to talk during this operation. But back to the secret bakery!

First and foremost the store lights are shut off and the door is locked, but one of the workers stands off to the corner of the store. If you stand directly across from the store it means you want a sandwich. He would then go back into his store and in the dark he would make you your sandwich.

Finally when he was done, he would look side to side to make sure there was no police coming and hand you the sandwich. You would then give him money and walk away. You are not supposed to talk during this operation. But back to the secret bakery!

After bundling themselves up, we went to St. Moritz. There they got to do this train ride that was three hours long but it was almost like a roller coaster. They would climb to such high elevation.

The train started off in Italy where the grass was green an hour later they climbed over the Alps with snow covered the grounds. Switzerland reminded Carianne of Christmas time because of all the trees and snow that covered the ground. All she needed was to sing some Christmas carols.

The girls take a scenic picture in front of a beautiful mountain range in Italy.

Meghan Rothschild didn’t think indoor tanning would hurt her. She was wrong.

UV light from indoor tanning, especially when exposed at an early age, can increase your risk of melanoma, the deadliest form of skin cancer. That’s what Meghan developed when she was 20 after being a frequent indoor tanner since she was 17.

Current estimates show that 1 in 5 Americans will develop skin cancer. Do you want to be the one... like Meghan?

Indoor tanning is out. To read Meghan’s skin cancer story go to www.aad.org/media/psa

ZTA Members Head to National Convention

JENNA USZENSKI CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Most college students spend their summers relaxing, sleeping and having a good time and not having a single worry about school. School was the last thing on Michelle Hacker and Jenna Uszenski’s mind, but they were given an opportunity of a lifetime when they were selected to represent their sorority’s chapter, Kap- pu Nu of Zeta Tau Alpha in Tucson Arizona for National Convention.

Both girls serve on their sorority’s executive council; Michelle being President and Jenna being Ritual Chairman. Michelle and Jenna’s adventure began on the early morning of Wednesday, July 9 at John F. Kennedy Airport where they were reunited with several other Zeta’s from other schools to travel with. After a long exhausting day of traveling the girls and 700 other Zeta’s arrived at the luxurious JW Marriott of Tucson, Arizona. The resort was a dream! It was gorgeous. Michelle and Jenna were separated into different hotel rooms. Zeta Tau Alpha wanted all the girls to get to know everyone and make new friends. Michelle roomed with other chapter Presidents, and Jenna roomed with other Ritual Chairmen.

After the girls were settled in to their hotel rooms, it was time to get to business. They were kept busy and had to follow a strict but enjoyable agenda. They had meetings, seminars, lunches and dinners to attend. At these meetings and events the Kappa Nu Chapter of Zeta Tau Alpha won many honors.

Michelle Hacker and Jenna Uszenski show off their MU pride.

Well, not much has happened since our last report but we do have our annual dance off this week. It will be at 10 pm in Pollak theatre, tickets are being sold by all brothers or at the door. We’d appreciate anyone who can make it out and support our philanthropy. This week was total, Academic Excellence. More importantly the girls won Crown Chapter, which is every Zeta’s dream to win. It was an amazing experience for both girls and nothing like they had ever expected. Michelle and Jenna will both tell you that their experience at the Zeta Tau Alpha Convention was life changing and an experience they will never forget. Both Mi- chelle and Jenna grew closer as sisters and friends that week as they depended on each other in a new atmosphere. In addition, the girls left with more knowledge to perfect and improve their chapter, and new friends who they can call sisters who all share the same love for their fraternity, Zeta Tau Alpha.

PRSSA Brings in Public Relations Professional

TAYLOR CORVINO ENTREPRENEURIAL EDITOR

WEST LONG BRANCH, N.J. -- Professional Advisor of the Monmouth University Pub- lic Relations Student Society of America Chapter (PRSSA), Ann T. Subervi, will be speak- ing at today’s PRSSA meeting held at 2:30 p.m. in Plaster Hall Center 235.

Professional PRSSA Advi- sors—PRSA members with at least 5 years of professional public relations experience—serve as role models of the public relations profession for the student association.

An officially endorsed ethics trainer for the public relations profession in North America by Trust Inc., Ms. Subervi founded Utopia Communications, an ethically based firm, to make a positive impact on the public relations world. Prior to presiding over Utopia Communications, Subervi served as the managing director for the public relations division of KCSA, the nation’s 11th largest independent public and investor relations agency. Subervi also founded Danlee Public Relations in 1995, which was ranked the fourth largest public relations agency in the State of New Jersey by PR Week Magazine.

Increasingly, companies are turning to their marketing and public relations partners to help them better communicate and develop socially responsible communications programs. That’s been our focus and I hope to pass it on to our future public relations professionals,” says Subervi.

As set forth by the mission of the national PRSSA association, Monmouth’s student society aims to foster greater understanding of current theories and procedures of the profession, appreciation of the highest ethical ideals and principles, and awareness of an appropriate professional attitude.

“Whether you are a Public Relations major or not, you do not want to miss today’s PRSSA meeting”

It’s finally that week... for Homecoming! We will be working on our t-shirts on October 22, 7:30-9:30, and October 23, 8:30-10:00. On Friday the 24th, we have the Pep Rally at 4:00; be completely set up by 3:30 so we can perform as spectators come in. And of course, Homecoming day is this Saturday the 25th! Kick-off is at 100. Good luck to Matt Monkan and Heather Marte, who are running for Homecoming King and Duchess, respectively.

Interested in being part of our performances? New members are always welcome; if you’re interested in joining, please stop by at any of our rehearsals!

♈ Aries • (Mar. 21 - April 19) - This week is a 7
Why do things keep happening? Because you haven’t figured out the reason behind it yet! Figure it out and you will be able to move past it. Do it quick because this weekend it’s time to see friends, have some fun, and be ready to step up your game.

♉ Taurus • (April 20 - May 20) - This week is a 7
Life keeps flipping and it’s driving you mad. Take some time to figure out what you want. Once you understand yourself better and enjoy yourself you will feel a bit better about your life in general. Make sure the focus isn’t entirely on you as the week progresses or else you will feel like you will never be able to get things together. This week is about self-revelation but remember, there are others in your life that your actions affect.

♊ Gemini • (May 21 - June 21) - This week is an 8
Things are looking up but be careful; as the weekend begins, your minor accomplishments will dissolve if you do not take steps to maintain them. If you can maintain your integrity, your weekend will become one of great memories.

♋ Cancer • (June 22 - July 22) - This week is a 6
Worried about your financial situation? Holidays will soon be arriving as will many bills. Make sure you plan accordingly. If you don’t know what to do, ask someone with a bit more knowledge than you and perhaps you can set up a plan together.

♌ Leo • (July 23-Aug. 22) - This week is a 6
You are not a planner but now is the time to look ahead. Yes, things right now may suffer, but it’s worth it when you accomplish all you hope to in the long-term. If you are feeling off balance, take a nice walk on the beach and enjoy the outdoors. The fresh air is good for you. By the close of the weekend, you finally feel ready for a social outing.

♍ Virgo • (Aug 23 - Sept. 22) - This week is an 8
Disorder in your life will drive you crazy but do not worry about it till the end of the weekend. For now, experiment! There is more than one way to get something done so why not alter your routine a little. Things will still get done and in a timely fashion as per usual but maybe you’ll have a bit more fun.

♎ Libra • (Sept. 23 - Oct. 23) - This week is an 8
Feeling like everyone has been pulling you in every direction? Why not lasso everyone up and bring them all to you? Comfort and friends is key for the week and you are on top of your game. Things may be off balance still but this weekend is a great time to sort everything out and find the cure to the imbalance.

♏ Scorpio • (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21) - This week is a 7
Feeling like something is missing? Physical exercise is a great way to work through the relatively detached feeling you’ve been experiencing. If that does not help, you have a few people that you can call that always seem to make you smile. Call them! They may just need you too.

♐ Sagittarius • (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21) - This week is a 6
You love looking first at the big picture and worrying about all the seemingly minor details later; do not do that this week. It’s important to make sure all the parts are functioning before looking at the whole. Organize everything because the importance is all in the details.

♑ Capricorn • (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19) - This week is a 5
Bite your tongue even if it hurts. Speaking your mind is not a bad thing but make sure you know exactly what you are saying and to whom you are speaking. Eating your words does not taste very good. It may be a bit of a stretch for you but you can do it. Finally as the weekend comes to a close you can feel comfortable to be yourself again.

♒ Aquarius • (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18) - This week is an 8
The end of the weekend is about analyzing and sorting through your life so do not stress out for the rest of this week; push that off till Sunday. Be creative, have fun, try new things. Your life will return to its rightful balance Sunday.

♓ Pisces • (Feb. 19 - Mar. 20) This week is a 7
With midterms and grades coming in, you have a lot to think about. Is your major really right for you? Are you afraid to finally commit to what you want to do with your life because you are afraid to either do well or fall on your face? Stop worrying and look into what you really want. The answers are there if you are willing to take a second and really look at what you’re doing.

Why get vaccinated?

Influenza (“the flu”) is a contagious disease. It is caused by the influenza viruses, which can be spread by coughing, sneezing, or nasal mucus. Other illnesses can have the same symptoms and are often mistaken for influenza. The only illness caused by the influenza virus is really influenza.

Anyone can get influenza, but cases of infection are highest among children. For most people, it lasts only a few days. It can come in three forms—chills, cough, fever, headache, muscle aches—often headache.

Some people get much sicker. Influenza can lead to hospitalization every year because of influenza and 36,000 die—mostly elderly.

Influenza vaccines are updated every year, and an annual vaccination is recommended. Influenza viruses are always changing. Because of this, influenza vaccine is sprayed into the nostrils. This vaccine is not an injection into the muscle.

There are two types of influenza vaccine:

1. Inactivated influenza vaccine
2. Inactivated influenza vaccine

Three types of influenza vaccine are available:

1. Inactivated (killed) vaccine, at the “Flu shot”. It is given by injection into the muscle. It kills, or inactivates (weakened) influenza virus and is sprayed into the mouth. The vaccine is a spray called Influenza Inactivated Vaccine. Influenza vaccines are always changing. Because of this, influenza vaccines are updated every year, and an annual vaccination is recommended. Influenza viruses are always changing. Because of this, influenza vaccine is sprayed into the nostrils. This vaccine is not an injection into the muscle.

Each year scientists try to match the vaccine to the virus that is most likely to cause the flu that year. When there is a close match the vaccine protects most people from serious influenza-related illness. But even when there is a close match, the vaccine provides some protection. Influenza vaccine will not prevent “influenza-like” illness caused by other illnesses.

It takes up to 4 weeks for people to develop the flu shot. Protection lasts up to a year.

Some inactivated influenza vaccine contains a preservative called formaldehyde. Some people have suggested that the formaldehyde may be related to developmental problems in children. In 2008 the Institute of Medicine reviewed many studies looking into this theory and concluded that there is no evidence of such a relationship. Thimerosal-free influenza vaccine is available.

Monmouth University brought in Robert McCourt as the new head men’s soccer coach in April of 2004, and the Hawks have soared ever since. In four seasons as the Monmouth head coach McCourt, has led his team to three consecutive Northeast Conference championships. He also reserves the title of a three-time NEC coach of the year award three times in his four-year tenure as head coach of the men’s soccer team.

His consistent success can be credited to his methodical approach as he comes into each year saying “we come in with the expectations or goals to win the Northeast Conference Regular Season and Tournament Championship and to make a run in the NCAA Tournament.” This approach has paid huge dividends for Monmouth and thankfully Coach McCourt has led his team to a regular season championship and a national final four. From there he became assistant coach of the Virginia Commonwealth Rams. As the assistant coach of the Rams he helped guide the team to two Colonial Athletic Association regular season and tournament titles in 2002 and 2003. In his time with the Rams Coach McCourt honed his skills as a recruiter. This skill has been shown ever since he began his tenure with Monmouth.

As the leader of the Hawks he has been able to acquire some of the top soccer prospects in the country. McCourt continues to coach professional quality players. In fact he has worked with some of the greatest soccer players of our generation. McCourt when asked who the greatest player he has ever coached was found it hard to say. Although Freddy Adu, Eddie Gavin, Michael Bradley, Cory Ashe and Gonzalo Segares...all now MLS or full USA National team members. Segares is a starter for the Costa Rican world cup team.

Monmouth soccer under McCourt has improved dramatically over the past three years. They have this opportunity thanks to their balance on both sides of the field. McCourt describes this balance stating, “All plans this concept stating, “A balanced and a playoff national tournament Championship and make a run in the NCAA’s. Anything short of that will be a disappointment for everyone involved.”

ROBERT MCCOURT
Head Coach Men’s Soccer

“Robert McCourt Leads Men’s Soccer to NEC”

Robert McCourt has won the NEC coach of the year award three times in his four-year tenure as head coach of the men’s soccer team.

McCourt remains methodical in his approach saying, “I don’t believe that coaches should make predictions. Our goal is to win a 4th straight NEC title and make a run in the NCAA’s. Anything short of that will be a disappointment for everyone involved.” Thankfully for fans of the team under Coach McCourt the Hawks have continually stuck to the plan and become champions in the process.

NFL athletes are some of the most finely tuned machines in the world. Their performance on the field is one that is enhanced through forty yards, leaping to heights others dream of. How- ever, off the field is where NFL athletes face the ultimate test. From the prototype Joe Namath, to basically the NFL as we know it today, NFL athletes have been linked to a multitude of altercations with one another, many times, they have been linked to altercations with civilians. Adam “Pacman” Jones is one such athlete whose name and face is well known in the NFL. The former Florida State University quarterback and now former defensive end for the Cincinnati Bengals has had his share of altercations, both on and off the field. In late 2007, it was revealed that Pacman was arrested outside of a Las Vegas strip club. The night began with a strip club hostess, which was later recovered by Police. When the skirmish was finally cleared and order restored, the club employee that had left the club owned that one man from Jones’ entou- rage returned to the club with a gun and fired, hitting three people. The security guard involved in the earlier altercation was shot twice, as another bullet hit for- mer professional wrestler Tommy Ulianis, paralyzing him from the waist down. Pacman claimed that he did not know the shooters, but still was arrested the next day. This was with him earlier in the night. On March 26, 2007, the Las Vegas Metropolitan Police and a local strip club. The night before, Jones and rapper Nelly were inside of the club, showing off the stage with hundreds of one-dollar bills, an act known simply as “mak- ing it rain”. When the dancers were told by the club promoter to collect the money, Jones became angry and took one of the strippers by the hair and screamed at her. The security guard intervened to stop the scuffle between the2 8, 2007, the Las Vegas Police and the security guard intervened to stop the scuffle between the stripper and Jones. On November 13, 2007, Jones ac- cepted a plea deal. On Dec. 6, Jones pleaded no contest to one charge of conspiracy to commit disorderly conduct. He was given a suspended prison sentence of one year, probation, and ordered to perform 200 hours of commu- nity service. Jones met with NFL commis- sioner Roger Goodell on April 3, 2007, to discuss Jones’ conduct in the NFL. Goodell suspended Jones for an entire season without pay, something not done in 44 years. He would not be paid for the eni- er’s suspension, and he would not be under review after the tenth game of the season. Jones filed for an appeal, but later dropped it. Jones was again involved in an assault at a strip club. On January 15, 2008, Jones was accused of hitting a woman in an Atlanta, Georgia strip club on the morning of Janu- ary 3. The woman was seeking an arrest warrant, but later withdrew it. Jones was finally reinstated by the NFL on August 28, 2008. He was traded from the Tennessee Titans to the Dal- las Cowboys on August 27, 2008, in a round pick deal. However, Pacman once again want an opportu- nity to make amends. The NFL granted him a second chance after a second suspen- sion from the NFL by Goodell on October 13 for violating the NFL’s alcohol-related policy. Pacman “Jones” has to be one of the dumbest players off the field. He has made his fair share of mistakes off the field, Jones’ latest blunder would certainly be the last straw. Jones’ ability to make mistakes off the field has continued his illustrious legacy with a drunken scuffle. The best part of the story is that Jones, fought his own body- guard. Jones no longer wants to carry the nickname “Pacman” and is seen walking in step in the rehabilitation of Adam Jones. If he continues on the path as he has been, he will eventually have to lose Jones too.
The Field Hockey team, led by seven seniors, collected their third win of the season against St. Francis University (PA).
