

Elements of a Citation: Journals and Books

The elements of a citation are the basic pieces of information used to identify a book or journal article. These elements can be “plugged in” to any citation style such as MLA, APA or Chicago. For more information on citation formats, visit the library or ask your professor.

Elements of a Journal Citation - (taken from EBSCO’s Academic Search Premier Citations)

Elements of a Book Citation – (taken from a bibliography on the American Revolutionary War)

